Figma Web Designer

Description

Excel SoftSources is looking for a Web Designer / Figma Developer, for a full time and fully remote job.

This position would be brand focused, and responsible for helping that to be realized. We would like them to have strong skills in Figma. They should have strong HTML, CSS and Vanilla JavaScript skills – along with the ability to work in simple web templates.

Responsibilities

As a Web Designer you'll be at the forefront of representing our brand, and our customers' brands, in all aspects of our business. From the first interaction that they have with our landing pages to the clarity of our marketing messages; from navigating a myriad of communication platforms to helping create flexibility in our diverse course offerings, you will be in the middle of translating design vision into reality and supporting all of the marketers, engineers and customer experiences, in between.

We want someone who appreciates the precision required in implementation of a design system and the ability to be an integral part of ensuring the output is of the utmost quality. Someone who understands and can work in technologies such as Figma and also enjoys and excels at realizing the design vision through work through work in HTML, CSS and JavaScript. A person with the attention to detail to notice small issues, no matter where they find them, and work through the process to deliver our content on a variety of platforms.

Qualifications

- * Strong Figma design skills.
- * HTML, CSS and JavaScript (simple) skills.
- * Understanding component-oriented design systems and how to smooth things out in practice.
- * Writing and testing interfaces that work across multiple browsers and cross platforms (tablets, desktops, mobile).
- * Nice to have: experience in Figma code generation tools and processes (using applications such as Anima).
